THE EVENING STAR.

DANDIES IN THE PAST,

Among the remarkable dandles of the past was Lord Petersham, inventor of the greatcost bearing that name, and also of a particular kind of blacking. Brummell was supposed to owe the brilliant polish of his boots to the use of champagne in the composition of his blacking. Other dandles were in favor of lavender and maraschino. Colonel Kelly, of the Guards, had quite a reputation for the superb polish of his boots. His sister was housekeeper to the Custom House, and on its being destroyed by fire, the unhappy Colonel perished with it;

losing his life in a desperate attempt to save The story told of Colonel Mathews offers a tooth, to his great distress. He resolved to have it replaced by a tooth drawn from another person's jaw-trusting to what the doctors called "healing by a second intention." The borrowed tooth was fitted in its place accordingly; but strange to say, the operation ended in inoculating his system with some poisonous virus, which brought on cancer of the mouth. The unfortunate gentleman did not long survive the experiment.

On the news of Kelly's cruel fate becoming Raown, there was great anxiety among the dandies to secure the services of his valet, who alone was in the secret of the wonderful blacking. The valet stated that his late master had paid him one hundred and fifty pounds a year, but that he should now expect a great increased salary. Lord Yarmouth (popularly known as "Red Herrings," from his red whishers, hair and face, and from the fish for which Yarmouth is famous) ultimately secured this invalurble valet for two hundred pounds a Brummell always insisted upon the soles of his boots being polished as well as the upper leathers. "He knew," says Capt Jesse, "the proneness of human nature to neglect its duties; and, as a consequence, he could never feel satisfied that the polish on the edge of the sole would be elaborated with the care that he thought indispensable unless he adopted extreme measures. He endeavored to secure his object by insisting that every part of his chaus-sure should be equally attended to." Reduced almost to destitution, he could hardly be prevailed upon to abandon the expensive luxury of Vernis de Guiten, ordered expressly for him from Paris, at five francs a bottle. At last a merciless boot maker threatened to imprison him if a long overdue account for Vernis be not paid. The poor beau writes to Armstrong, his kind agent, imploring assistance: *I will enter into any promise with you on the subject of this d-d polish that you may demand, if you will instantly enable me to pay this scoundrel." A month later he writes: "I have never trespassed upon the rules of economy which you dictated to me, excepting in one instance, and that has been that d-d execrable blacking. I have now relinquished Next he foregoes his starched white cravats, appearing in that pet aversion of his life, a black silk neckerchief. Soon the poor creature has hardly clothes to his back, or shoes to his feet. Starch or blacking are very small matters to him now. Four years after the episode of "the scoundrel bootmaker," poor Brummell, paralyzed and imbecile, diseased and loathsome, is dying in the "Bon Sauveur," Caen. Lord Petersham was tall and handsome, and is said to have possessed a remarkably winning smile. He flattered bimself upon his resemblance to the portraits of Henry IV of France. He was affected in manner, and spoke. with a lisp. He had a passion for brown. His carriages were of that hue, as were also his horses, and harness, and liveries This devotion was supposed have had reference to a you bful affection of his lordship for a fair but ficule widow, whose name was Brown. He bad also a passion for tea. His room locked like a grocer's shop, from the shelves against the walls supporting canisters of various teas, and also large jars of snuff, with the names of each description in large letters outside.

In Secessia they give a man liable to do military duty so many days' furlough for every recruit he brings in. One conscript went to work and procured enough men to entitle him to a furlough from Gen. Lee of 8,210 days, which is over 22 years.

It is said that a handseme young lady in disguise followed the rebel General J. E. B. or "Jeb" Stuart on his expeditions. Writers of "novellettes" will please take notice.

The coal must in all respects be satisfactory to the inspector or inspectors, to be appointed by the Bureau, who will have the right of peremptory rejection.

The coal is to be delivered on board vessels, at such place in the port of Philadelphia as may be designated by the Bureau, and in such quantities and at such times as, in the opinion of the Bureau, the exigencies of the service may require; com-the exigencies of the service may require; com-mencing when the vessel is reported ready to re-ceive cargo; furnishing, if demanded, not less than 1,00 tons per day, to be distributed to each vessel, as may be directed, until the loading is completed.

Proposals will likewise be received for the delivery of $0.000 tons of the same quality of coal, to be delivered in the port of New York, on board vessels, as at Philadelphia.

In the case of failure to deliver the coal in proper In the case offailure to deliver the coal in proper quantity, of the proper quality, and at the proper time and place, the Bureau will reserve in the contract the right to purchase forthwith, at the contractor's risk and expense, that which may seem necessary to supply the deficiency.

Any demurrage, or other charges to which the Navy Department may be subjected from delay in the prompt delivery of the coal by the contractors, will be deducted from their bills.

The price must be for the coal delivered on board vessels, on the terms and conditions above stated, at the contractor's risk and expense, and without extra charge of any kind.

The offer, as required by law, must be accompanied by a written guaranty, signed by one or more responsible persons, to the effect that they undertake that the bidder or bidders will, if his or their bid be accepted, enter into obligation, at such bid be accepted, enter into obligation, at such time as may be prescribed by the Bureau, with good and sufficient sureties, to furnish the supplies proposed. No proposition will be considered unless accompanied by such guarantee: and the Department reserves the right to reject all the offers, if considered to be to the interest of the service to do so. Two or more sureties each in a sum equal to the amount specified to be paid, will be required to sign the contract, and their responsibility will be certified by a United States District Judge, United States District Attorney, Collector, or Navy

As additional and collateral security—twenty per cent. will be withheld from the amount of all pay-ments, which reservation is not to be paid except by authority of the Secretary of the Navy, until contract shall have been in all respects complied with; and the remaining eighty per cent. or other amount that may be due upon each bill, will, when a proper certificate is furnished by the inspector, and the bill approved by the Bureau, be paid by such navy agents as the contractor may name, within ten days after the warrants for the same shall have been passed by the Secretary of the Treasury the Treasury.

It will be stipulated in the contract that if default be made in the delivery of the coal—in the quantity, or the quality, and at the place and time directed by the Bureau—then, and in that case, the contractor and his sureties will forfeit and pay to the United Stater, as liquidated damages, a sum of money not accept the contract price. money not exceeding twice the contract price, which may be recovered from time to time, according to the act or acts of Congress in that case provided.

Bidders whose proposals shall be accepted, and none other, will be notified, and, as early as practicable a contract will be transmitted to them
